

Interview questions for Lisa Marshall and Yin: Completing the Leadership Journey

1. What was the inspiration behind writing Yin?
2. What is Yin leadership and why does it matter?
3. What do you mean by Yin Elderhood? Where does that fit in to Yin Leadership?
4. On your website you mention Flower Soldiers. Who are they?
5. What is the difference between Yin and Yang leadership?
6. You suggest that mature leadership comes on many levels; intellectual, emotional, spiritual and physical. Can you please share with us an example of physical leadership?
7. Who are some shining examples of mature leaders in today's business, government, and community organizations?
8. Can you share more about this: "Yin offers a compelling vision of a very different future than the one we are heading towards"?
9. What do you mean by the compelling power of story?
10. What does one's story have to do with becoming a mature leader?
11. People with Yang affinities and people with Yin affinities may experience your book differently, can you give us some examples?
12. How do you use the idea of "story" to help leaders understand Yin maturity?
13. What are some tips you can offer to women leaders to begin a leadership maturity dialogue within their organization?
14. Are you still coaching people on their journey?
15. What more will people learn by going to your website?

<https://yincompletingtheleadershipjourney.com/>